

The FCC is increasingly becoming the enemy of the public and those who support free speech. Its rules and regulations are so reflective of the Bush administration's right wing conservative attitude. America is a free country and should be open to competition. XM radio is a service that is superior than broadcast radio. For the service that we pay a fee. Free broadcast radio pales in comparison. Is it fair to punish those who strive to improve technology that makes our daily lives better. As a person who travels in my car over 50,000 miles a year, I rely on the XM instant traffic and weather reports to improve my business. It would be disgrace for the FCC to pass NAB petition 04-160. Technology has reached its great heights today by allowing us to take steps into the future and not by taking steps backward. The challenge that lies ahead should fall on the laps of the NAB to improve their product and not downgrade others that have surpassed it.
